About this report

Generated on: Sun Dec 04 12:16:49 2022

This report summarizes an analysis of eDNA \(environmental DNA\) in an aquarium water sample. Universal genetic markers were amplified from Eukaryotic DNA in the sample, and thousands of individual DNA molecules from this mixture were sequenced. Each sequence was then compared with public DNA databases to identify its origin. (You can read more about this method here).

This report summarizes the kinds of organisms detected in this sample, with a special focus on pathogens and parasites of concern in the saltwater aquarium industry and hobby.

Information about the sample

Dinoflagellates

This sample contained low levels of DNA from dinoflagellates (0.2%) - this is normal and does not suggest a problem.

Diatoms

We did not detect any DNA from diatoms in this sample.

Eukaryotic Biodiversity

|---------------------------------------|----|
| Diversity (Number of different types) | 85 |
| Number of Phyla | 12 |
| Number of Classes | 13 |

This graph shows the diversity of each Eukaryotic group in the DNA sample. Each slice represents a different Class, and the size of the slice is proportional to the number of different types in that class. Unidentified sequences lacking any match in public databases are not shown.

Sample Composition

This graph shows the relative abundance of each Eukaryotic group in the DNA sample. Each slice represents a different Class, and the size of the slice is proportional to the fraction of DNA in the sample from that class. Unidentified sequences lacking any match in public databases are not shown.

Complete list of Eukaryotes identified

These tables, arranged by Class, list all Eukaryotic species that were detected in the sample and identified based on comparison with public DNA sequence databases. DNA sequences that lacked any matches in public databases could not be identified, and are not shown here. "Type" is an arbitrary number assigned to each unique sequence found in the database.
